Burna Boy Stuns at Met Gala with Regal African Elegance

Burna Boy stunned the global audience at the 2025 Met Gala with a regal ensemble designed by Ozwald Boateng. The outfit paid homage to African heritage and survival, featuring a red wool tuxedo and oxblood cape that embodied cultural continuity and pride.

Styled by British-Ghanaian designer Ozwald Boateng, the outfit was praised for merging luxury fashion with Afrocentric symbolism. Burna Boy told Vogue: "This isn't just fashion. It's a statement - about where I come from, the battles we've faced, and the elegance of our survival."

Tiwa Savage & Usher Spark Dating Buzz: Afrobeats Meets R&B Romance?

Tiwa Savage and Usher have been spotted together in an intimate setting, sparking rumors of a romance. The viral video from their LA dinner has fans excited about a cross-continental celebrity couple. Neither has confirmed the relationship, but online reactions continue to explode.

Omah Lay Hits 1 Billion Streams: A New Milestone for Afrobeats

Nigerian singer Omah Lay has hit a major milestone with over 1 billion Spotify streams for his debut album 'Boy Alone'. The album's global appeal and emotional honesty have made Omah Lay one of the most streamed African artists in history.

Nollywood Goes Digital: YouTube Becomes the New Cinema

With major platforms scaling back, Nigerian filmmakers are embracing YouTube. Omoni Oboli's 'Love in Every Word' hit 5M views in 3 days. This signals a new era of independence and global reach for Nollywood creators who are reclaiming their audience.

President Tinubu Lands in Anambra: A New Era for the Southeast?

President Tinubu visited Chinua Achebe International Airport in Umueri, Anambra, launching development projects. He emphasized the Southeast's importance to Nigeria's growth, sparking cautious optimism about stronger federal inclusion.

Labour Party Implodes: Power Struggle Threatens Nigeria's Youngest Political Movement

PRESIDENT TINUBU

Internal crisis has rocked the Labour Party as a faction moves to discipline chairman Julius Abure. Clashes erupted during a recent NEC meeting, threatening the unity and credibility of the party seen as a reformist force in 2023.
